The Gypsy Nun

by Garcia Lorca

...Through the eyes of the nun two horsemen gallop.
A last quiet murmur
takes off her camisole.
And gazing at clouds and hills
in the strict distance, her heart of sugar
and verbena breaks.
Oh what a high plain
with twenty suns above it!
What standing rivers
her fantasy sees setting!
But she goes on with her flowers, while standing, in the breeze,
the light plays chess
high in the lattice-window.
